WRIT 8505 is basically a writers' workshop where each of us works on a research project and then come together to get feedback and help with our writing. I'll be convening this writers' workshop on MW from 6:00 - 8:30 p.m. from June 16-August 22 in Magrath 6 on the St. Paul campus. Last summer the participants accomplished a good deal of work and even completed their research projects with the structure and support offered in this class. I also completed an article revision, so I know first-hand how productive I can be when I have a group to be accountable to and deadlines to complete the phases of my work.

If you have a research project to complete and/or are looking forward to completing your MSSTC degree requirements, please consider registering for WRIT 8505 this summer. Let me know if you have questions about this class or if you want a permission number to register...Prof. Longo
