Dear Graduate Student and/or recent Alumni,

As a member of the Big Ten Academic Alliance, our institution is participating in the Faculty Fellows Program to Diversity the Professoriate. This is a collaborative effort of the Big Ten Academic Alliance and the Associated Colleges of the Midwest (ACM).

With generous support from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, this program will place 30 new and/or recent PhD and terminal Master’s degree recipients in the humanities, humanistic social sciences, and the arts into tenure-track positions at ACM member colleges over a period of 5-6 years. At this point in time, six Faculty Fellows have been appointed in the following disciplines: African American History, Critical Identity Studies, Education, Philosophy, Spanish, and Sociology.

The Faculty Fellows Program aims to recruit candidates interested in pursuing a career in undergraduate teaching and scholarship at a liberal arts institution. Faculty who are hired into the selected tenure-track positions at an ACM college, and who are eligible to be designated as a Faculty Fellow, will have a reduced teaching load for the first year and second year of their tenure track (or an extended fourth-year leave, at the discretion of the college). Successful candidates will also receive other support, including campus-based mentoring along with consortial workshops to provide the Fellows a rich introduction to teaching, scholarship, and professional development at residential liberal arts colleges.

To register your interest in being considered for a full-time, tenure-track faculty position at one of the 14 liberal arts colleges of the ACM, please follow this link to input your information:

http://btaacandidates.ACM.edu/

You will be prompted at the end of the registration portal to create a username and password, so that you may log-in and update your information and CV as needed, or as you progress toward your degree.

Please note that you will still need to officially apply for the position of interest at the ACM campus, so please check the available postings:

Eligibility for Faculty Fellowships
The Fellows Program is open to all qualified candidates and encourages applications from individuals:

- from underrepresented groups in the professoriate, including African Americans, Hispanics, Native Americans, Alaska Natives, Native Hawaiians, other Pacific Islanders, and/or first-generation college students;
- who have followed nontraditional pathways to college due to exceptional talent and motivation in the face of adversity, such as societal, economic or academic disadvantages; and
- who have demonstrated a commitment to applying and including diverse backgrounds and perspectives to learning, scholarship, service and leadership in the academy.

In the 2016-2017 hiring cycle, ACM Colleges are eligible to designate Faculty Fellows in the following areas:

- Beloit College: History; Media Studies
- Carleton College: African and African American Studies; Political Science
- Cornell College: Religion
- Grinnell College: English; History
- Knox College: Classics; Educational Studies (elementary education)
- Lake Forest College: Psychology
Lawrence University: Ethnic Studies; Music Theory
Monmouth College: Political Science; Psychology
Ripon College: Psychology
St. Olaf College: Music Department; Joint appointment in Religion and Environmental Studies

The Faculty Fellowship is funded by The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and thus the fields of eligibility include the following, as well as other graduate fields not included here that the candidate’s home institution would consider as part of the humanities, humanistic social sciences, or arts:
